

MAGMA

scorchmark poem 1973 (Cat No 108) Copyright Paula Claire 1973
From E.I.E.D? (acronym of William Blake's line 'energy is eternal delight'), a set of 9 visual poems for performance made with a soldering iron on paper to express various aspects of elemental energy such as the forces in plutonium, the sun, stockpiles of weapons, fission and fusion processes. This piece has proved very popular and can go on for 15-20 minutes in explosions from many voices recognising that we all live on a great ball of fire. Published by Writers Forum, London, 1978.
